Men's Suits!

AT
$10, $12.50, $15

Here mean more than the mere figures might imply. All houses are selling suits at those prices, but no other house pretends to sell the suits we do at that money. In all that helps make a suit as good as can be, these suits excel. In the material, in trimmings and workmanship and in the tailoring of them nothing can compare with them that you'll find elsewhere at the price. And all we want you to do is to see them before you buy your spring suit.

Men's Pants, 45c.

THAT'S WHAT.

Not pants made of materials you can see through, but strongly woven Cassimeres, made up as good and strong working pants, and only 45c pair. Worth—well, we'll let you say.

SWEET-SCENTED REFORMERS WINKED AT CHASE'S SCANDALOUS CONDUCT.

LEWELLING KNEW ABOUT IT.

SO DID SNIDER AND THE OTHER CACAMITY HOWLERS.

ALL WAS ROTTEN IN DENMARK.

CHASE WAS SUCH A GOOD WIRE PULLER THAT HE MUST BE PROTECTED.

Miss Matthews Swore That She Had Informed the Entire Populist Administration Repeatedly of the Penitentiary Scandal—Chase's Brutality Exposed.

Topeka, Kas., April 5.—(Special.) The committee investigating Warden Chase were treated today to a fine panoramic view of inside Populist history. Captain Waters, attorney for Chase, had Miss Abbie Matthews, the former matron at the penitentiary, recalled for the purpose of laying the ground for impeachment of her story of yesterday, in which she told of the infamous conduct of Warden Chase and Miss Lou Williams.

When asked if she had not deemed it her duty to inform the governor and board of penitentiary directors of Chase's conduct, Miss Matthews testified that she had done so. At the June meeting of the board of directors she had informed Mr. Hollenbeck of the board of directors of the fact that she had seen Lou Williams in the warden's arms while he was in the act of kissing her. At the July meeting she told the board of the fact that she had seen Chase kissing Miss Williams twice as she lay on the bed in her own room, and also related to them the details of how Miss Williams came out of the bath room in most scanty raiment and went into her own room with the warden and locked the door. On the 27th of August she had gone to see Captain Superintendent of Insurance Taylor, Mrs. Snider and Miss Matthews were friends. Mrs. Snider had told her of the fact that Chase had been in the penitentiary, as also did Mr. Snider. On one of these visits Mrs. Snider had told her that Chase had been in the penitentiary, and the others had said he should not be unless he was a good wire puller. Chase had said to her, "I don't want to be a good wire puller, I want to be a good wire puller."

Chase's appointment as warden of the penitentiary was made by Governor Lewelling, and these charges must be pushed up.

Out of consideration for the Sniders, Miss Matthews had not told of the fact that Chase had been in the penitentiary, as also did Mr. Snider. On one of these visits Mrs. Snider had told her that Chase had been in the penitentiary, and the others had said he should not be unless he was a good wire puller. Chase had said to her, "I don't want to be a good wire puller, I want to be a good wire puller."

Then the witness told how she had fallen out with Mrs. Snider. She had told that Chase had been in the penitentiary, as also did Mr. Snider. On one of these visits Mrs. Snider had told her that Chase had been in the penitentiary, and the others had said he should not be unless he was a good wire puller. Mr. Cleveland Is Weary of British Aggression on American Soil and Thinks a Tilt With John Bull Would Just Suit His Sanguinary Nature.

Washington, April 5.—(Special.) There is a dash of excitement in inner administration circles over what it is believed the president intends to do in the Venezuela controversy. It is claimed that the president clearly indicated today at a cabinet meeting that he did not like the position taken by England in that matter; that he intended to enforce the Monroe doctrine, and that he would not allow any European power to interfere with the American continent.
